If you are convicted of operating a boat under the influence of drugs or alcohol, the court will order you to take a boating safety course and suspend your vehicle driver's license. You may also be sentenced to jail for up to 6 months and assessed fines of up to $1,000. A subsequent conviction of operating under the influence (vehicle or vessel) within 7 years of a prior conviction could result in fines of up to $1,000, jail for up to 1 year, mandatory boating course, and mandatory driver's license suspension for up to 5 years. The length of suspension or revocation is based on the number and type of violations accumulated.
